1. The Bluetooth Range can vary depending on the ambient environment. The range is tested in an outdoor environment with no physical obstacles.
2. Playtime duration can vary depending on actual usage and the volume of the device. Playtime duration is tested at 33% volume of the Bluetooth Audio device.
3. The IP rating determines how resistant something is to environmental elements. Most IP numbers read IPXX, each "X" being a placeholder for a number. The first number represents the level of resistance to dust/particles and the second representing its ability to withstand liquid.
4. Driver size denotes the diameter of the diaphragm.
5. Signal to Noise Ratio is defined as the ratio of signal power to the noise power, it is represented in decibels.
6. Impedance refers to the load a speaker places on an amplifier. Technically, impedance is the "resistance" a speaker offers to the current supplied by an amplifier because the output current of an amplifier is AC (not DC, like from a battery), this resistance is called impedance.
